Leaving Lightly

Students, Parents, Experts

During move-out season, limited connection options prevent students from selling furniture, causing unnecessary waste.

"I couldn't find anyone to take my mattress, so it ended up in the trash—completely heartbreaking."

— Joanne, class of '24

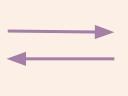

How might we encourage conversations and facilitate transactions between students who want to sell/discard furniture and students who want to buy more affordable furniture?

Our Solution: Leaving Lightly

User Profile:

- Sophomore who will be moving into apartments soon.
- Is super stressed with finals and doesn't have time to search on the internet/thrift stores.
- Is focused on finding cheap furniture.
- Cares about her safety.
- Has specific items in mind.

I wish there was an easier way for me to find the specific kind of items I'm interested in.

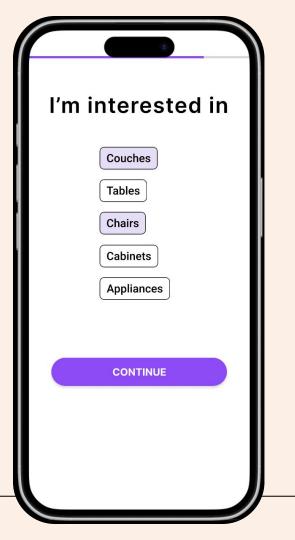

Thanks for letting me know!

The category selection feature streamlines the buying and selling process by letting sellers tag their items with specific categories. Buyers can filter their search to see only the items that match their interests, eliminating clutter and making browsing quick and efficient.

Swipe right, it's just right. Swipe left, keep your sight!

The swiping feature makes the conversation initiation process more easy and intuitive, making transactions faster and simpler, knowing that if you swiped right you are interested in the product!

I'm concerned about my safety. I wanted some type of mechanism that ensured I would only talk with NU students.

Thanks for letting me know!

The NetID feature ensures a secure and exclusive community for Northwestern students, allowing only verified users to access the app. By restricting access to NU students, the feature creates a trusted space for buying and selling, giving you peace of mind that you're transacting within your own university network.

Why could this be huge?

Average College

On average, U.S. universities report more than 230 tons of waste left behind following student move-out

Average Student

The average college student generates a total of ~640 pounds of waste per year

Furniture

Over 25% of waste during a typical move-out period is furniture (and other bulky items)

Our Vision

We aim to become the medium through which furniture waste at universities can be greatly reduced and redirected to new life with new students. We strongly believe that Leaving Lightly has both the potential and the capacity to make this impact real.

Real User Feedback!

"It seems very easy to use, and I could understand how everything works in a few seconds. I loved how the feature I said I wanted to see is actually here!"

– Andre

"It would be nice if someone implemented this.

I hated moving [...] It's so much effort to move

- if this can lighten the load, it'd be so much easier." - Paloma

"I loved the app and it is really easy to use." - Ana

"I feel like I'm starting to see more of the possibility of it actually happening!" – Paula

"I love the idea of having a gamified layout for buying furniture. That will definitely make it easier for you to come across items you're looking for."

- Raphael
